If you suffer backache, sleepless nights, tired, dull days and distressing urinary disorders, don't experiment. Read this twice-told testimony. It's Barre evidence—doubly proven.

George I. Beckley, Hill and Liberty streets, says:

OVER A YEAR LATER, Mr. Beckley said:

"Whenever I have any symptoms of kidney complaint, Doan's Kidney Pills never fail to cure the attack."

Price, 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Beckley has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

There is no place for rheumatic pains and misery, if you will only follow the advice of an old, experienced physician. ## She Left Her Feet Behind.

A good old Scotch minister, calling unexpectedly on a widow who lives in a cottage on the outskirts of the village, surprised her in the midst of washing a lot of clothes. She hurriedly hid behind a clothesline and told her little boy to say that she was out.

"The visitor knocked at the door. 'Well, Jamie,' he said, 'and where is your mother?'"

"My mother's not in; she's downstreet on a message," promptly replied the lad. "Indeed," replied the minister, with a glance at the bottom of the screen. "Well, tell her I called; and say that the next time she goes down to the village she should take her feet with her!"

What to Do for Itching Skins

There is usually immediate relief for skins itching, burning and disfigured by eczema, ringworm, or similar tormenting skin-trouble, in a warm bath with resolin soap and a simple application of resolin ointment. The soothing, healing resolin medication stops itching at once, and soon clears away all trace of eruption, even in severe and stubborn cases, unless the trouble is due to some serious internal disorder.

You need never hesitate to use resolin. It is a doctor's prescription that has been used by other physicians for twenty years in the treatment of skin affections. It contains absolutely nothing that could injure the tenderest skin. Every druggist sells resolin ointment and resolin soap. Resolin Soap soothes tender skins and helps to make poor complexions clear, fresh and velvety, because it contains this resolin prescription.

Waking Up the Farmers.

There is really an item of hope for the American consumer in that rejuvenation of the livestock industry which was one result of the recent national stock exhibition at Springfield. This exhibition has had the effect to convince the farmer of the eastern half of the United States of the fact that the solution of the problem of the country's food is up to him, and can be settled only through a new organization of the livestock industry. Three-quarters of the farms in this section of the union are in reality livestock farms, but they have for a long time been conducted on a butter and milk basis, which is in great danger of proving unprofitable at last, because it is too partial and special a thing, and because in the end the farmer does not make one hand wash the other.

Far too long the eastern farmer's motto has been, "I care not who feeds the people in the cities and towns so long as I can supply them with their luxuries." Western farmers have been stimulated to the attempt to build up herds of beef cattle, to organize their flocks of sheep on a mutton as well as a wool basis, to restore their worn-out pastures to raise more pigs and poultry, for eggs to diversify their farming, that, like their prosperous grandfathers, they will "always have something to sell." The discovery, which ought to have nothing surprising about it, that pig-raising goes admirably with orcharding, has been made. So has the discovery that the old-fashioned agricultural hen, who picked up an admirable living on a diversified farm, and whose egg-product could consequently be sold at a low price, is really more profitable than the henry hen, maintained at high cost and necessitating a fancy price for eggs. Good breeding stock is needed all around, of course, and scientific methods are absolutely required for profitable results. But never was the desirability of the old-fashioned diversification more strongly indicated.

At all events the day of the range-fed beef animal is over, because the age of the free range is over. With the American people, it has become a question of farm-fed beef or none. It remains to be seen whether the country which has agricultural and stock-raising resources superior to those of any other country in the world is or is not going to rise to its opportunity. And when, if confronted with a great opportunity, did the American nation ever fail to rise to it?—Boston Transcript.

The Winter Berry.

Cranberry Pie—Chop one cup of cranberries fine and one cup of sugar. Put two level tablespoons of cornstarch in a cup and a little cold water and stir until smooth. Then fill the cup with boiling water. Mix with the cranberries, add a level tablespoon of butter and a pinch of salt. Line a plate with paste, fill with the cranberries, then cover with narrow strips of paste laid in lattice fashion and bake.

Cranberry Sherbet—Measure two cups of water, two cups of cranberry syrup and two of sugar. Add the juice of two lemons and freeze to a mush. Stir in the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs, freeze a little more and serve in sherbet cups.

Cranberry Syrup—While cranberries are least expensive, make some syrup for coloring desserts and for sherbet. Put six cups of cranberries with five cups of water and cook until the berries become a soft mush. Drain through a bag made of fine doubled cheesecloth and measure the juice. To one cup of sugar allow two cups of cranberry juice. Put the juice into a preserving kettle, cook five minutes and seal in bottles.

Cranberry Jelly—Mold the jelly in after-dinner cups. Put four cups of cranberries into a saucepan with one cup of water and stew until soft. Press through a wire strainer, when there will be about two cups of pulp and juice. Add an equal amount of sugar and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Let boil up, skim and turn into little cups and set away to become firm.—Christian Science Monitor.

Villa Comes Back.

With Villa 50 miles south of Chihuahua and occupying something like a hundred miles of the railroad line thence southward, the Carranza faction stand soon to lose their last hold on northern Mexico, the hatching place of two recent successful rebellions. Villa seems to have considered that his plunder grounds, the unfortunate cities of his native country, have been left intact long enough to yield him another crop. If he is right his capture of Santa Rosalia, Jimenez and the important city of Parral should bring recruits as well as booty to his band.

To expect a firm defense from the Carranza garrison at Chihuahua is to close one's eyes to the weakness not only of the present defensive campaign of Carranza's men but also to the fact that Chihuahua has on every occasion of attack in the past six years fallen an easy prey. The Carranza force at Chihuahua might indeed call in the aid of Pershing, whose United States regulars are waiting for orders of one sort or another at Casas Grandes, 150 miles to the northwest. Quite probably, however, the representative of "rancia would prefer flight to a call upon the strength of the gringo.

Possibilities of work for Pershing's force loom up in any case. Once Carranza ceases to exercise a nominal hold on the regions adjacent to Pershing, Carranza's objections to the Americans' acts on Mexican soil will lose a great deal of their weight. With the expedition free to act and with Villa perhaps not averse to trying for revenge upon his former pursuers, a renewal of hostilities might well result for the United States should Villa's gains continue. Warning in present events is unmistakable. That the expedition failed to ride down the bandit general after the Columbus raid may be laid to Carranza and all his restrictions upon the army's passage. For the same expedition to be unable to meet Villa at this late date would be inexcusable.

If the latest exploits of this common enemy make worry for Pershing they must worry Carranza a great deal more. The fated journey south, beginning in wild Sonora and ending at Mexico City, 800 miles away, has apparently begun again, and has for its leader a veteran traveler of the route. Carranza leaders, as we pointed out more than a week ago, showed signs of panic. What must now be their mental disturbance with Villa suddenly nearer and stronger than they had expected! Bad times for Mexico stand a chance, if anything, of growing worse. At this late date there can be little to hope from the chance of any firm and consecutive action at the White House during the present term.—New York Evening Sun.

First Senator By Popular Vote.

Massachusetts has re-elected Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge as United States senator. He likewise has the honor of being the first to be elected senator by popular vote. Six years ago his election came from the members of the state legislature.

Ever since he entered politics Mr. Lodge has been chosen to the positions of public trust to which he aspired. Mr. Lodge entered the Senate in 1893 and his new term will end in 1923.

Senator Lodge is one of the best known men in public life to-day. He has always wielded much influence in the Senate as well as in the councils of the Republican party. Like all other men, he has made mistakes, but he has never hesitated to acknowledge them.

At this critical stage in the affairs of this country, Massachusetts has decided to retain in Congress a senator whose experience and ability are unquestioned. Senator Lodge should be proud of the further honors bestowed on him by his fellow citizens.

Gov. McCall has been re-elected by a substantial majority. This result was unexpected. This is a presidential year and the election returns show the Republicans were justified in believing that their reserve vote would make their state ticket victorious.

This second victory for Gov. McCall is as much a personal one for him as it is a triumph for his party. The great mass of Republican voters evidently believed he was entitled to a second term as governor and they acted according to their convictions. The governor is to be congratulated on his success.—Boston Globe.

Newspaper Space Comes High.

Seth was a tight-fisted, hard-hearted old farmer. His brother, William, dying, the neighbors said, from lack of proper treatment, Seth hitched up and drove into town to have a notice about his death inserted in the weekly newspaper.

"There ain't no charges, be there?" he asked.

"Oh, yes, indeed," answered the editor, "our price is $2 an inch."

"Cracky!" muttered the old man, "an' Bill six foot two!"

If So Crippled You Can't Use Arms or Legs Rheuma Will Help You or Nothing to Pay.

Rheumatism is a powerful disease strongly entrenched in joints and muscles. In order to conquer it, a powerful enemy must be sent against it. Rheuma is the enemy of rheumatism—an enemy that conquers it every time.

Judge John Barhorst of Fort Loramie, Ohio, knows it. He was walking with crutches; today he is well. It should do as much for you; it seldom fails.—Adv.
